SPRING, 1982

THE CHAPTER SERVICE PROGRAM: ITS RECOGNITION AND USE

BY: Stan Carpenter, Service Committee Chairman

In APO we talk a lot about successful service projects. Projects require at least minimal planning, good execution (usually) and accomplishing an objective (we hope). However, when we string all the projects for a year together, what can emerge is a coherent pattern or a "service path" resembling that of a water bug or a child in the comic strip "Family Circle."

All your projects collectively is the chapter service program. It can be random or it can be well planned and helpful to the chapter. Here's what a good service program looks like.

A good service program meets the needs of the campus and community, of the chapter and its members, and the needs imposed by Alpha Phi Omega ideals. Needs are identified through listening, active research and observation, or even questionnaires. A good program considers needs in the four areas of service: campus, nation, community (including Scouting) and chapter (Fraternity). Each area can be explored for meaningful service projects, while also considering the needs, interests, and abilities of the chapter membership. A project that is not interesting or requires unavailable technical help will fail. Likewise, a program that does not consider its implementors will not be successful.

A good service program is planned before, or at the beginning of each academic year with the service committee or its equivalent setting the goals. They should be derived with as much chapter input as possible and the program planned around these goals. The goals should be relatively general, with each project acting as a measurable objective to carry out the goals. Planning should be specific enough to be helpful, but flexible enough to avoid calcification. That is, you may initially set a Blood Drive for late March or early April and then set a specific date after consultation with the Red Cross. Planning should take into account the things mentioned above, as well as school-oriented priorities such as finals, sports, contests, parents' days and fraternity dates such as Sectional or Regional Conferences, the National Convention, Service Day (the first Saturday in November) and the National Program of Emphasis. Planning and plan adjustment should be a continuous process. If you don't know where you are going, you are likely to end up somewhere else.

A good service program is evaluated. Every project and the overall program should be evaluated in a timely and exhaustive fashion to find out what went wrong and, just as importantly, what went right. Planning is rendered much less useful without evaluation based data. Hand in hand with evaluation are reporting and sharing. For example, all evidence indicates that Service Day, 1981 was a huge success. Many great projects were reported and many proclamations obtained. However, only about 30% of the chapters which participated in Service Day reported to the National Office. What wonders have not been heard about? Similarly, if you don't evaluate every project and your program every year, you don't really know what has gone before, and you are forced to re-invent the wheel. Evaluate! Nip bad trends in the bud. Reinforce good trends. Never repeat mistakes.

Finally, a good service program has balance. Various projects should reflect a balance between large and small projects, among the various service areas, between "remote" (like organizational fund raising) and "hands on" (like painting or play-days with handicapped children), between fun and drudgery, between chapter and other fund-raising, between on-campus and off, etc. Balance and variety help keep the chapter interested and others interested in the chapter.

Learn to see your chapter's efforts as more than a loose aggregation of random projects. Just as each member is part of the whole chapter, each project should contribute to a recognizable entity — the Service Program. Meet needs, plan, evaluate, balance ... enjoy!

A TRIBUTE TO DEAN ARNO NOWOTNY

One of Alpha Phi Omega's greatest brothers, Dean Arno Nowotny, passed away in Austin, Texas, on Friday, April 9, 1982. Dean Nowotny was a true leader, a friend to all who knew him, and a provider of service to humanity throughout his life. His loss will be felt by Alpha Phi Omega brothers everywhere.

Arno Nowotny was born in a log cabin at Crane's Mill, Texas, on July 29, 1899. His birthplace, a few miles south of Fischer, Texas, has since been inundated by Canyon Lake. He grew up in nearby New Braunfels and in Bartlett, Texas, and entered the University of Texas in 1918, ultimately receiving three degrees. He joined the staff of the university in 1926 and later became Dean of Student Life, the position he held until his retirement in 1964.

Dean Nowotny became associated with Alpha Phi Omega in 1938 as an advisor to Alpha Rho chapter which had been established a few years earlier. He was elected national president of the fraternity in 1946. During his term as president, the fraternity expanded at a rate not experienced before or since, growing from 109 to 227 chapters. Much of the growth was made possible by the relationships between Dean Nowotny and his colleagues on campuses across the nation.

Dean Nowotny's involvement with Alpha Phi Omega did not end with the end of his presidential term. He was active as an advisor to Alpha Rho chapter when I became a pledge in 1964. We traveled together to a number of fraternity gatherings including the constitutional convention in 1967 and later to several board meetings until failing health forced him to cease making such trips. He was a great traveler, and had more than a few stories to tell about the development of the fraternity. It was always fun to be with him.

Over the years when I have been faced with a challenge or a decision, I have often thought of Dean Nowotny and attempted to determine what action he would have taken. On those occasions when I have become discouraged or weary from my efforts in behalf of the fraternity or in some other endeavor, a thought of Dean Nowotny has often made me less tired and mindful of the fact that by comparison, I have done very little.

Dean Nowotny's life was a source of inspiration to me, and to many of us in Alpha Phi Omega. His memory will always be a treasured part of our heritage. The fraternity itself is an extension of his life and work. Each of us can honor his memory through our continued devotion to the principles of the fraternity and our contributions to its work.

1980-81 H. Roe Bartle Chapter Awards

The H. Roe Bartle Chapter Award was established in the name and memory of our longest serving Past President to recognize chapters for their excellence in chapter program and administration. The basis for the H. Roe Bartle Award is a program review and self-evaluation conducted by the chapter itself.

The original concept of this award, expressed by Brother Bartle, is that it is possible for every chapter to qualify.

As with each preceding year the list of recipients grows

TAU EPSILON — TENNESSEE TECHNOLOGICAL UNIVERSITY

Tau Epsilon has had a busy year. Their National Service Day activity was a Leaf Rake held on the weekends. Yards of the elderly and handicapped were selected, resulting in 95 clean lawns, and many tired backs and sore hands. The chapter found the project was a great success and a great way to solidify campus community relations. The chapter is located at Tennessee Technological University, Box 5252, Cookeville, TN 38501.

BETA BETA — MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Peggy Hackney and Doug Darrow, Service Vice Presidents report, "at the beginning of the year we sent out letters to all local community agencies introducing ourselves and inviting them to call for help. By Spring, we were flooded with requests for help!"

The activities of this chapter are indeed impressive! They have an active program of activities that are short term: Red Cross disaster management training, shoveled snow and raked leaves, collected donations for Christmas stockings, repaired toys and assisted with klondikes and camporees. Their long term projects are equally outstanding: engraved student valuables to prevent theft, built nature trails for a local arboretum, helped remodel a local museum building and ran blood drives on campus. More information can be gotten by writing to: Walt Downes, President, Beta Beta Chapter, Michigan State University, P.O. Box 208, East Lansing, Michigan 48824.

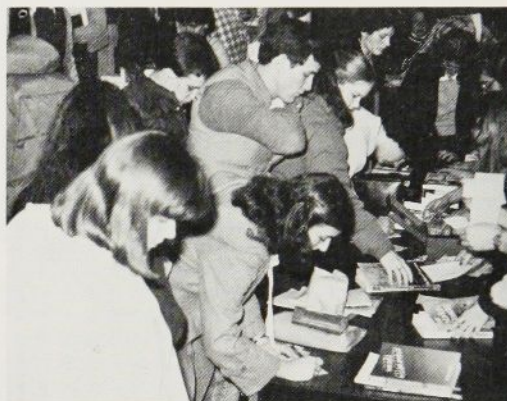

RHO — UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Rho Chapter at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill sponsors a Student Book Co-Op at the start of every semester. This Spring, with an active Brotherhood of 88 members, Rho Chapter collected over 12,000 books and netted $8,000. Combined with last semester's profits, a total of $12,000 will be donated to the Benard Grail Scholarship Fund.

The Book Co-Op project runs for 22 days and is divided into three stages: collecting books, selling and cash back. Eighty-five percent of the price is returned to the student with fifteen percent going towards the Fund on campus.

Planning, hard work, and co-operation by Brothers has made the Book Co-Op a consistently successful project and one that Rho Chapter is indeed proud to participate in. For more information write to Alpha Phi Omega, Rho Chapter, Box 48, Carolina Union 065-A, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, Chapel Hill, NC 27514.

MU THETA — LUTHER COLLEGE

Traditionally, fraternities have their smokers, sororities have their teas and the Mu Theta Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega at Luther College has their Coke Float.

The APO Coke Float is an informal, informational meeting which orientates people to the fundamentals of the chapter. Lured by the promise of ice cream floats, prospective pledges are provided with an opportunity to get acquainted with current members and to ask questions pertaining to the Fraternity's operations.

The Coke Float has worked well for Mu Theta and has evolved into an annual tradition. It is an ideal opportunity to get the foot in the door, so to speak, and generally sparks a certain interest and awareness in our organization. Most important of all, it provides a fun-filled social activity for the Brothers as well as an effective recruiting instrument.

GAMMA LAMBDA — CLEMSON UNIVERSITY

A National Service Day "diaper relay" highlighted the Fall 1981 service calendar of Alpha Phi Omega's Gamma Lambda Chapter at Clemson University.

Dressed in diapers bearing the names of local businesses and campus organizations, Gamma Lambda members November 7 ran a total of 50 miles across Northwestern South Carolina to raise $1,150 for the state chapter of the American Arthritis Foundation.

The relay began on the Clemson campus and ended at a shopping mall in Greenville, SC. Relay runners passed a baby bottle baton to each other along the route.

Gamma Lambda credits the success of the relay to the business that sponsored diapers, the area residents and Clemson students who made contributions, and the chapter members who did the planning, organizing and running.

The chapter hopes to make the relay an annual National Service Day project. For information write to Clemson University, P.O. Box 2795, Clemson, South Carolina 29632.

EPSILON MU — UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND

For three years the Brothers have been collecting aluminum cans in their recycling program to raise money for St. Jude's Children's Hospital. They have a three year total of nearly $1,000 and are working to increase sorority and fraternity participation in the competition. A major aluminum company provides the trophies and plaques for winners. More information can be obtained from Epsilon Mu at University of Maryland, P.O. Box 72, College Park, MD 20742.

PSI GAMMA — WENTWORTH MILITARY ACADEMY

This Chapter is a very active group for its size and one that is recognized as a vital resource to the school and community. On campus they decorate for dances, operate football concession stands, operate the school's soda machines, serve as guides and assist with wrestling and basketball tournaments.

Their community activity demonstrates a priority on scouting through sponsoring a district camporee, district swim and track meets, and hosting the district scout appreciation dinner. The community knows Alpha Phi Omega is present because of the bloodmobile drive, help with community clean up day, Christmas donations and assistance with the community fair. Psi Gamma is located at Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington, MO 64067.

ETA UPSILON — MARSHALL UNIVERSITY

Service Vice President, Mary Helen McMorran reports a busy semester with 22 projects, including the parking lot clean up, assisting Beta Chapter's fund raising, "Run from Pitt," and "Bounce (the basketball) for Bucks" which raised $170 for local charity.

The chapter has given special care to the National Service Program of Emphasis by holding a birthday party at Huntington State Mental Hospital and escorting a group of mentally retarded persons to a football game.

Eta Upsilon produces a newsletter worthy of note. The chapter may be reached at Marshall University, Campus Christian Center, Huntington, WV 25701.

PI SIGMA — COLLEGE OF SAN MATEO

Despite a membership pool of some 60 active Brothers from which to draw, Iota Phi Chapter (University of California-Davis) was sent down to an 11-5 defeat by the Brothers of recently reactivated Pi Sigma Chapter (College of San Mateo) during the prestigious San Mateo Cup Tournament (so-named because Pi Sigma paid for the trophy). Before sending their defeated Brothers home on the 100 mile trip back to Davis, Pi Sigma furnished an evening of food, hot-tubbing and music (a custom started by Iota Phi after the previous game). "Some folks can play softball, and some folks can't," remarked Pi Sigma team captain Alan Burnett, recalling Pi Sigma's 18-5 loss to Iota Phi last July.
